Neighbors Helping Neighbors

Many people in our community and neighboring communities were excited when we had a white Christmas this year for the first time since 2010. The snow made for some beautiful pictures, but along with the cold weather, it caused power outages for many cooperatives.

Nearby Fort Loudoun Electric Cooperative's service area received from six to 10 inches of snow and experienced extensive power outages. Tri-State EMC (TSEMC) sent six men—Jim Callihan, Billy Henry, Stacy Galloway, William McClure, Wesley Jones and Chris Nelson—to help Fort Loudoun get their members' power on quickly. They left about noon on Christmas Day and worked until nearly midnight on Dec. 26 to restore power for members in this area.

It is important in our rural communities to help one another, and TSEMC was proud to be of assistance.
